For lesbian, gay, bisexual, and trans people, the year 2012 ended with various rights violations like previous years. In 2012, 11 hate crimes were committed. 6 transgender and 5 homosexual individuals lost their lives because of hate-motivated killings. 8 hate-motivated violence incidents were reported on the Internet and on LGBT news portals. It was a difficult year with lynching attempts, torture, ill treatment, domestic violence, rape and cyber attacks.

Under the “Discrimination” chapter of the report, 3 violations of the right to housing committed against transgender women were detected. In work life, 2 people started their legal struggles after they were fired for their sexual orientation. 4 people were not allowed to enter a place and to receive service because of their sexual orientation or gender identity. In health care services, the Turkish Red Crescent claimed that HIV-positive blood was obtained from a bisexual individual in the “HIV-Positive Blood” case. With the military’s redefinition of homosexuality leading the way, we have encountered discrimination in “state discourse” in 7 different events.

As LGBT associations, we have been working to monitor and report the human rights violations of LGBT people for the past seven years. When we compare the reports compiled since 2007, we observe that there is still no real change. The homophobic and transphobic implementation of law in ongoing cases, law enforcement agencies’ attitudes towards LGBT people, and new hate crimes still constitute a significant part of the reports.

The facts that Ahmet Yıldız’s case still has not closed, that “unjust provocation” reductions in penalties continue, and that killers are not caught are just a few of the problems detected… There were 11 violations of the right to life that were recorded in 2012. As LGBT associations, we will continue to follow the court cases on rights violations in the coming years. In this way, these cases will continue to be on the agenda of the human rights movement.

Human rights monitoring and reporting activities are performed by LGBT associations’ volunteer networks and employees. This may cause us to receive news of rights violations late or not be informed of them at all. For example, we were late to hear about the hate crime in Diyarbakır. We were also late to hear about the death of the young gay man in Ankara after his forced suicide. We are aware that there are rights violations, especially of the right to life, of lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender people that we have not or could not have heard.

Therefore, this report does not display the entirety of the human rights violations against lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender (LGBT) people in Turkey. These violations have many layers and the obligation to hide their sexual orientation and gender identity is one of them. Another aspect is the thought that they will be violated again when trying to access justice against violations based on sexual orientation and gender identity. At the same time, the inability to guess how their legal process will reflect on other parts of their lives is another facet. All these layers continue to make LGBT people defenseless and easy targets against violations and makes their victimization permanent.

Some of the categories under the “Hate Crimes” heading are ones that we have just started reporting on. The obstacles put in place in accessing the websites of LGBT associations from universities and the hacking of news sites by “religious” groups constitute are new fields of violation against lesbian, gay, bisexual, and trans people’s freedom of speech.

In 2012, lesbian, gay, bisexual, and trans people “faced lynching” in Çandarlı, Izmir and in Antalya. Lesbian, gay, bisexual, trans or heterosexual people were attacked due to homophobic and transphobic motivations. The perpetrators defended themselves by saying that the victims were homosexuals.

We emphasize that the long-established judicial practice of giving penalty reductions based on unjust provocation in hate-motivated killings of LGBTs have made LGBT people open targets and as mentioned above, perpetrators continue to be rewarded by the judiciary. As long as this implementation continues, LGBTs will continue to be targets.

This report is entitled “2012 Report of Human Rights Violations Based on Sexual Orientation and Gender Identity.” Our problem of accessing the problems of homosexual and bisexual women and the discrimination and other human rights violations committed against trans men continue. As LGBT associations, we continue to think about ways to overcome this deficiency.

This report consists of 5 parts. In the first part, we assess Hate Crimes. The second part is on Discrimination and Hate Speech. In the third part, we present Ongoing Court Cases in 2013 and in the fourth part, we give place to Cases Concluded in 2012. The fifth part records Positive Developments. In the conclusion, we list the demands of LGBT organizations in the field of human rights.

Location: Diyarbakır
Source: Kaos GL

The killing of 17-year-old R.A. by his father and uncle in Diyarbakır turned out to be a hate-motivated killing.

According to FemînKurd.Net’s report, despite the fact that R.A. was a homosexual, local press did not heed this information and mainstream media ignored the background of the murder by portraying it as a judicial case.

The youth’s death was presented as a “judicial murder” by the press. His parents were aware that their son was gay. According to FemînKurd.Net, upon learning his sexual orientation, his male relatives killed 17-year-old R.A and were motivated by hate.

LGBTT People Face Lynch Attempt, Gendarmerie Ignores
17 August 2012
Location: Dikili, Izmir
Source: Black Pink Triangle Izmir

12 members of the Black Pink Triangle Association in Izmir saved themselves from getting lynched at the last minute in Dikili’s Çandarlı township. When members of the association, who were in Çandarlı for meetings and to vacation, called the gendarmerie with the information that they would be attacked, they got the response “there is nothing we can do.”

Demet Yanardağ stated that they went to Dikili’s Çandarlı township, on Tuesday, August 14 as a group of 12, rented two houses and split into two groups. After settling in the houses and having their meetings, they went to the seaside after sunset. Yanardağ said that they saw a group of 3-4 people following them. Yanardağ explained that “There were constantly talking on the phone with some people. Their number reached 15 after a while. We decided to go back to the houses when we realized they were there to attack us. When we got up, they split into two.” She further explained that they called the gendarmerie and told them that they would be attacked but they got the response “Is there an attack? If not, we cannot do anything.” They called the gendarmerie several more times and the group that followed them dispersed after a while. Yanardağ said that one person followed them as they were going home in order to find out where they were staying and ran away when they walked towards him.

Dilkeşer’s death was discovered after her friends, who had not heard from her in a while, called the police.

Stabbed Him Because He Whistled

14 June 2012
Location: Seyhan, Adana
Source: Pink Life

A man in Adana assaulted and stabbed a person he deemed as homosexual for allegedly whistling at him.

Habervitrini.com stated that the crime took place in the Kurtuluş neighborhood of Seyhan, Adana.

According to the allegations, Mustafa M. (28) went out for a walk on Ziyapaşa Boulevard. At that time, Mehmet Ö. (44), who was deemed to be gay by Mustafa M., was walking behind him and whistled at him. Mustafa M. got angry and attacked Mehmet Ö. when he caught him in front of a store and started beating him in front of everyone. Mehmet Ö. tried to get away by running into the store but Mustafa M. went inside the store, dragged him out, and continued to beat him. Then, Mustafa M. took a knife from his pocket, stabbed Mehmet Ö. in the leg, and left the scene. Meanwhile, the people who saw the event called the police. The police caught Mustafa M. with the knife and took him to the police station.

Mehmet Ö. was sent to the Adana State Hospital by ambulance and was discharged after his treatment. Mustafa M. appeared before the court and was set free pending trial.

Groom-to-be on Facebook Turns out to be a Woman
18 December 2012
Location: Istanbul
Source: Haberturk

Özlem G. (28), created a new Facebook account with the male name Emir Bucak. High school student P.T. (16) fell in love with Emir. In January, Özlem G. eloped with P.T. who had not understood that Özlem G. was a woman. The couple went to Özlem G.’s family house in Heybeliada. In February, they eloped again and went to the same house. The couple stayed together for 10 days and was found by the police after P.T.’s parents complained to the police. Özlem G. was taken into custody, stated that the correct name was Emir Bucak but had lost the identification. The police believed this story and released Özlem G. upon the public prosecutor’s orders that “the girl had eloped with her own free-will.” Özlem G. and relatives, with flowers and chocolate, went to the family to ask for their permission to marry P.T. Then the truth surfaced.

The prosecution filed a suit against Özlem G. with a 9 to 27 year prison sentence request based on: “attempt to deprive a person of their liberty, false statements on official documents, insult, threat on the basis that the person made him/herself unrecognizable, disrupting people’s peace.”

Attack on KaosGL.Org, The Same Scenario!*
17 December 2012
Source: Kaos GL

Kaos GL’s news and association site were subjected to cyber attacks yesterday evening and the LGBT News Site kaosgl.org was shut down for a short while. The attack took place during the closing hours of “The Anti-Discrimination Symposium” organized by Kaos GL Magazine for the Human Rights Week.

Kaos GL readers could not access kaosgl.org for a short time after the attacks. During this time, the attackers put a collage on the homepage of the site that consisted of statements and assumed “hadiths,” with the attackers’ views on homosexuality. These statements were hate speech.

About a year ago, a similar attack was carried out during the International Anti-Homophobia Meeting Activities. The same “religious” story repeated itself.

According to messages on social media after the attack, the contemporary interpretation of the Turkish and Arabic collage states: “Say no to those who claim homosexuality is normal! No to Homosexual Propaganda!”

*Even though the attack was “motivated by prejudice,” the field of cyber hate crimes remains untouched and uninvestigated within the judicial process.

“Are You A Man?” Gets 2 years in Jail
16 December 2012
Location: Antalya
Source: Vatan Newspaper

Transsexual A.P and her female friend Z.K. went to Olimpos, Antalya for their summer vacation. Under the influence of alcohol, Z.K. and A.P. allegedly talked loudly in the guesthouse and employees warned them. But they did not just warn them; they also suggested that they have intercourse. Then the argument intensified. The two friends called the gendarmerie. But the two friends ended up being the suspects and the employees became the victims.

SENTENCED TO TIME IN PRISON

Gülsah Başdaş, the judge of the Kumluca Court of First Instance, decided that Z.K. and A.P. committed crimes of “insult and threats” after the testimonies. Because the employees did not submit official complaints, the judge withdrew the crime of insult but sentenced Z.K. and A.P. to 25 months of prison without delay for saying, “Are you man enough? Go outside! We will show you!” Once the Supreme Court of Appeals ratifies the decision, the two friends will start their sentence.

The bill, presented to the Council of Ministers that institutes the penalty point system to the Turkish Armed Forces, shuts down discipline wards dubbed “disko” but continues to consider homosexuality as a crime.

PENALTY POINT SYSTEM ON THE WAY

İsmet Yılmaz, the Minister of National Defense of Turkey, submitted the bill to the Council of Ministers. The new system proposes punishment to those who reach a certain level of penalty. The bill also describes homosexuality as “unnatural closeness/sexual relations” and considers it the heaviest disciplinary crime within the military and cause for expulsion from the military.

An Odd “Human Rights Association” in Kocaeli
06 November 2012
Location: Kocaeli
Source: Kaos GL

A group carrying out activities under the name Karşı Işıklar Kocaeli Human Rights Association continues to target a different group each week with statements made by a group of 10 members and has added a new attack to its roster. Having targeted the LGBTs before, the group targeted people celebrating Republic’s Day (29 October) in Ulus, Ankara.
The group had targeted the Peace and Democracy Party (BDP) and the Republican People’s Party (CHP) over the debates in the Constitutional Reconciliation Committee in the past months. The group carried posters that said “We condemn BDP for supporting faggot marriages!” and claimed that homosexuality was an illness to be treated. In this way, a group that carries the words “human rights” in its title opposed the fundamental rights and equality of LGBT people.

Source: Kaos GL

The protests against trans individuals in Avcılar’s Denizköşkler neighborhood in Istanbul have turned into lynch attempts. Kaos GL’s press statement on October 4 asked “Is Avcılar Transforming into a New Lynching Region?”

A 50-person group gathered in front of Meis residential compound, started a fire and hit pots and pans along with threatening slogans in an attempt to lynch trans citizens.

Upon these protests, the police raided three houses of trans individuals and sealed them under the claim “prostitution undertaken in the houses.” Thereby, the right to housing and privacy protected by the constitution were violated.

Supreme Court of Appeals in Favor of Penalty Increases for “Oral and Anal sex”
4 June 2012
Source: Kaos GL

The Supreme Court of Appeals decided that a penalty increase could be applied in the case of a man convicted of selling CDs with pornographic contents due to their oral and anal sex contents.

A longer prison sentence was requested based on the “unnatural sexual behaviors” criteria in the penal article on pornographic crimes.

According to Turkish daily newspaper Habertürk’s report, the Supreme Court of Appeals requested a heavier penalty for defendant S.K., who was sentenced to 1 year in prison for selling pornographic films, due to the oral and anal sex content of the CDs.

*This decision is a violation of Article 8 (Right to respect for private and family life) of the European Convention on Human Rights. It is a violation of constitutionally protected private life not only for homosexuals but also for heterosexuals.

The Turkish National Police fired police officer F.B. (28) from the profession after investigations on his gender identity.

The Turkish National Police used current work laws that do not protect sexual orientation and gender identity from discrimination to not only fire the officer but also to sue him.

Using the excuse that the police officer’s transvestite identity “provided and facilitated prostitution,” Bakırköy Court of First Instance has opened up a suit requesting up to 4 years in prison. F.B. was acquitted of “providing and facilitating prostitution.”

*Discrimination based on gender identity and the violation of the constitutionally protected right to work.

Begüm (44) was attacked by police in Izmir. As to be expected, the officer has a different story. If the Supreme Court of Appeals accepts the suit, the officer will continue his job and Begüm will be sentenced to over a year in prison in a men’s ward.

According to the court documents, Begüm is described as a “transvestite in women’s clothing.” She lives in Izmir and is 44 years old.
Begüm was attacked by police officers in front of the Romanian Embassy in Alsancak, İzmir at around 6 AM on 13 February 2011. Begüm was beaten, injured with a baton and emotionally traumatized. Begüm went to court and brought a suit against the police officer, H.S., guarding the Romanian Embassy. H.S. was acquitted and Begüm was sentenced to prison for “insulting and preventing someone from performing his/her duty” and fined 1,100 TL for H.S.’s legal fees.

Mayor Melih Gökçek’s Open Declaration for Discrimination Against LGBTs
3 April 2012
Source: Kaos GL

LGBT organizations have reacted to the discriminatory statements by Ankara Municipality Mayor Melih Gökçek.

On a TV program on 2 April 2012, TV host Okan Bayülgen asked Ankara Mayor Gökçek “When will we have an openly gay mayor in Turkey?” Gökçek was surprised by this question and said, “We have our own lifestyles, traditions and customs. It is different there. I hope there will not and should not be a gay mayor in Turkey.”

SPoD (Social Policies, Gender Identity, and Sexual Orientation Studies Association), Kaos GL and Pink Life Association have criticized Ankara Mayor Gökçek for ignoring LGBT rights.

Police took 18 men into custody in a movie theater in Istanbul. Police officers raided a movie theater in Kartal for “showing sex films and engaging in prostitution” and took 18 people into custody.

Officers of the Bureau of Public Order’s Department of Morality and Gambling raided the theater upon a tip that a theater in Kartal “showed sex films and engaged in prostitution” on the weekends.

A local newspaper in Izmir called to extinguish the roots of transsexuals and accused all trans individuals of prostitution. Though a legal process was brought upon the newspaper, a decision of non-prosecution was declared on the basis of freedom of expression. The trial, opened on the grounds that the Constitutional Court did not fulfill its obligation for an effective investigation and that discriminatory attitudes existed in the right to equality, the right to a fair trial, and the freedom to demand rights, was rejected with the argument that only suspects benefit from the right to fair trials. The case was taken to the European Court on Human Rights.

The case of Ahmet Yıldız, who was killed by his father because of his homosexuality, continued in Üsküdar First Higher Criminal Court for Aggravated Crimes in Bağlarbaşı, Istanbul.

The 11th hearing took place today. The information that the defendant’s arrest warrant was “erroneously” cancelled by the Adana Public Prosecutor’s Office was questioned and the following decisions were made: to wait for the execution of the arrest warrant; to reissue a new arrest warrant according to Article 94 of the Code of Criminal Procedure if the arrest warrant has been cancelled; to investigate whether the red notice decision for the defendant has been processed.

Kaos GL’s request to join the pending case as a joint plaintiff was rejected “based on Article 237 and the following articles of the Code of Criminal Procedure, which shows that the plaintiff was not a victim or has not been harmed by the crime.” While attorney Fırat Söyle argued, “The association which requests to join the pending case as a joint plaintiff is an association for the rights of homosexuals. Association members have been seriously affected by this event and we demand that their request be accepted,” the council for the prosecution and the defendant’s attorney objected, “Similar requests have been made before and denied.” Taking this objection into consideration, Kaos GL’s request to join the pending case as a joint plaintiff was rejected.

The Supreme Court of Appeals Accepts Insult to Homosexuals as a Crime
9 January 2012
Source: Kaos GL

The Supreme Court of Appeals has agreed that describing homosexuals as “perverts” and “faggots” are insults and has found the Kaos GL Association’s suit against “Vakit” newspaper just and thereby overturned the decisions of the local courts.
The 4th Legal Office of the Supreme Court of Appeals has emphasized that the freedom of press does not mean a freedom to violate personal rights. The Court pointed that the newspaper now called “Yeni Akit” overstepped the bounds of criticism by using the terms “sexual pervert” and “faggot” to describe people with different sexual orientations and considered these insults. The Court declared author Serdar Arseven and the newspaper guilty and ordered the payment of indemnification.

The decision described Kaos GL as “an association that defends the rights of people with different sexual orientations.” The attendance of former parliamentarian and the Grand National Assembly of Turkey’s Human Rights Commissioner Zafer Üskül was also noted.

The acceptance of the request constitutes a first and serious gain for LGBT Associations. Following the decision, another women’s association’s request was also accepted.
CONCLUSION

Recommendations for the Reduction of Human Rights Violations Based on Sexual Orientation and Gender Identity

The Republic of Turkey must make the necessary arrangements in the field of human rights to conform to the agreements that it is party to and that have been incorporated into national law. These agreements are the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights of the United Nations, International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights of the United Nations, and the European Convention on Human Rights.

• The expressions “Sexual Orientation” and “Gender Identity” must be inserted into the Article on Equality in the New Constitution.

• Protocol 12 of to the European Convention on Human Rights must be ratified.

• The expressions “Sexual Orientation” and “Gender Identity” must be included in the draft bills of the Anti-Discrimination Law and the Equality Law. These expressions must be legally recognized.

• The Turkish Human Rights Institution and Ombudsman Institution must deal with every type of human rights, democracy and legal violation by adopting an approach that includes sexual orientation and gender identity.

• The expressions “Sexual Orientation” and “Gender Identity” must be included in the articles that arrange the ban on discrimination in the legal system. Direct and indirect discrimination as well as harassment must be defined.

• The legislative study on Hate Crimes must immediately be undertaken and preventive penalties for hate crimes against LGBT people must be set. Legal arrangements must be made to ensure that “grievous provocation” abatements are not applied to hate crimes.

• Vague expressions such as “public morality,” “obscenity,” “unchasteness,” and “disgraceful offences” must either be removed from the Turkish Constitution, Turkish Penal Code, Civil Code, Law on Misdemeanors or rearranged in a way that cannot be used and construed against LGBT people.

• Turkey, as one of the founders of the Council of Europe, must take all necessary legal and political steps for full compliance with the Recommendation CM/Rec (2010)5 of the Committee of Ministers to member states on measures to combat discriminations on the grounds of sexual orientation or gender identity.

• The discriminatory and prejudicial attitudes of law enforcement officers and legal units, who are responsible for the increased victimhood of LGBTs in investigations and prosecutions following rights violations, such as hate crimes, discrimination, and police violence that LGBTs are exposed to, must be eliminated and prevented.
• The consideration of homosexuality and transsexuality as “advanced psychosexual illness” in the Health Regulation of the Turkish Armed Forces and the degrading and humiliating treatments that homosexuals, bisexuals and transsexuals face during the process of service exemption must be eliminated.

• The Discipline Act of the Turkish Armed Forces, which labels and punishes homosexuality as “unnatural closeness/sexual relations,” and fires homosexual officers from the military and their profession based on sexual orientation must be changed and homosexuality must be decriminalized.

• The government must regulate discriminations based on sexual orientation and gender identity in work life. Regulations banning discrimination against LGBTs in job announcements, employment and lay offs must be enacted. The Labor Law must secure LGBT employees and workers by recording “sexual orientation and gender identity” after “gender” equality.

• Social and institutional training programs in order to eliminate the rights violations of LGBTs in their access to education, employment and health services in private and state institutions, must be implemented and followed as a positive obligation of the state.

• The opinions of the relevant branches of the United Nations, the Council of Europe and the European Union must be sought while implementing regulations that focus on all aspects of human rights and especially in the prevention of discrimination. These studies must be conducted in cooperation with human rights organizations, women’s rights organizations and LGBT associations.

• Statistical studies that help reveal discrimination against LGBTs must be conducted.

• Human rights training based on homophobia, transphobia and discrimination must be provided for law enforcement officers and legal organs for the realization of a fair trial process. The cooperation of NGOs must be sought for this training.

• The prison system must be regulated in a manner that recognizes sexual orientation and gender identity and practices of isolation must be eliminated.
